DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on October 26, 2007 has been entered.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement filed November 8, 2007 has been submitted for consideration by the Office. It has been placed in the application file and the information referred to therein has been considered.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 28-49 and 51-59 are allowed.

4. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: This invention deals with an electrical power transmission line, comprising: at least one electrical cable; a conduit of ferromagnetic material enclosing said at least one cable and comprising a base and a cover; and electrical contact elements electrically connecting said base and said cover, wherein said electrical contact elements, are selected from the group of metal fusion joints and resilient members suitable to penetrate said ferromagnetic material (claim 1). This invention also deals with a 46. (Previously Presented) A method for screening the magnetic field generated by an electrical power transmission line comprising at least one electrical cable, said method comprising the steps of: placing said electrical cable in a conduit of ferromagnetic material comprising a base and a cover; coupling said base and said cover with an electrical contact element that penetrates said ferromagnetic material; and providing an electrical connection between said base and said cover having a conductance, per meter of length, of at least 150 Siemens/m (claim 46). This invention also deals with a method for screening the magnetic field generated by an electrical power transmission line comprising at least one electrical cable, said method comprising the steps of placing said electrical cable in a conduit of ferromagnetic material comprising a base and a cover; and providing an electrical connection between said base and said cover having a conductance, per meter of length, of at least 150 Siemens/m by realizing a metal fusion between said base and said cover (claim 58). This invention also deals with an electrical power transmission line, comprising: at least one electrical cable; a conduit of ferromagnetic material enclosing said at least one cable and comprising a base and a cover, said ferromagnetic material having a maximum relative magnetic permeability greater than 1,000; and electrical contact elements electrically connecting said base and said cover, wherein said electrical contact elements are selected from the group of metal fusion joints and resilient members suitable to penetrate said ferromagnetic material (claim 59). The above stated claim limitations is not taught or suggested by the prior art of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed October 26, 2007 have been fully considered and they are persuasive. Specifically, the applicant argument that " First, because Fasterding expressly teaches inserting screws or friction bolts "through holes in the lids," Fasterding does not teach or suggest at least "resilient members suitable to penetrate said ferromagnetic material," as recited by claim 28" nor the "Furthermore, neither Siewerth nor Fasterding discloses a conduit of ferromagnetic material having a relative magnetic permeability greater than 1,000" is persuasive and therefore the claims have been allowed.
